

Before You Submit – FAQ

What does SISP publish?

SISP is non-profit, open access scholarly publisher that publishes research results of Smithsonian scholars and about Smithsonian collections. Its principal products are open access monographs (i.e., discipline-specific technical monograph series and edited collections, including conference proceedings).

Can I submit my manuscript to SISP?

Check WHO IS ELIGIBLE.

I'm eligible. Now what?

Use the table below to pinpoint which guidelines you need to prepare your manuscript, then download them from our RESOURCES page.

Guidelines	Contributions Series and Open Monographs	Atoll Research Bulletin
Atoll Research Bulletin Formatting Instructions		X
SISP Manuscript Preparation Guide	X
Contributor's Guide to Preparing a Paper in an Edited Collection	X
Digital Art Preparation Guide	X
Reference styles: a) Author-Date b) Botany c) Notes & Bibliography	X

How do I know which reference style to use?

Use what is most common in your field of study. SISP accepts all systems listed in the table above and will accept an author's chosen system if it is applied consistently and is clear for readers.

Are there any other guidelines I should review?

Other helpful web pages include: HOW TO SUBMIT, PERMISSIONS, and FAQs.

My manuscript is ready for peer review. How do I submit?

Visit our HOW TO SUBMIT page.